YOU Have The Power!

The destiny of a work such as ours rests with those who associate themselves with that work. Whether it's the trustee who puts in hundreds of hours every year without compensation and spends thousands of his own dollars to keep it afloat, or the curious walk-in visitors who end up cooking a holiday meal as a family service project, or the anonymous donor who sends in a check for $100 after reading about The John Taylor House in a local newspaper, or even the many businesses and families who selflessly donate to the Utah Food Bank, every person even remotely connected to The John Taylor House exercises the power to change lives and improve them.

The John Taylor House owes its survival to the generous support of its friends, neighbors, and donors. Helping others in need warms the heart and soul of the giver as well as the one receiving the blessing.

Won't you exercise your power to make good things happen? Make your tax-deductible donation today using the coupon at right. And as always, we thank you for your support.
